Dear Prof. Ambo Ako,

We hope this email finds you in good health.

We have received the following reviewer's comments for your manuscript.

"1st Review:

I have reviewed the revised manuscript and I consider it suitable for publication with a few minor changes highlighted in the attached

2nd Review:

The following minor improvement of the manuscript:

1. I strongly suggest the manuscript requires a thorough review by an English editor so that the content of the work can be presented in a more succinct way.

2. Did authors conduct analysis on Certified Reference Material (CRM) or Standard Reference Material (SRM) in order to verify the analytical methods for all samples?

3. When the author mentioned that they did not analyze Cd content in waste feed because Cd content in blood, meat, and liver in both 2- and 5-year-grazing periods are not exceeded WHO standard, does this mean that the content of metal in waste feed and leachete were conducted after the blood, meat samples were analyzed? If so, would that indicate that prior to the assessment of heavy metals in the cattle, no consideration were made on the potential sources of heavy metals presence in the grazing area especially in the feed waste and leachete?

4. Is Jatibarang Landfill, Semarang as stated by Rahmawati et al (2018) is within the same location of where this study was conducted?

Dear

Editorial Office
Science Publications

We have already fixed our paper. Revised manuscript is attached in 3rd manuscript document

CRM, 2012

Comment: Ref. is not mention in the refs. List

Answer: We have change to CRM.

Results and Discussion

Comment: There must be two separate sections, one for RESULTS and other for DISCUSSION. Please make sure, not to repeat results in DISCUSSION section and do not comment Results in RESULTS Section

Answer: We have already separated between result and discussion including each sub title.

WHO, 2000

Comment: Ref. is not mention in the refs. List

Answer: Sorry for mistaken literature. WHO, 2000 should be WHO, 1996. We have already changed
