IN-DEPTH STUDY OF MULTIPLE CROPPING FARMING SYSTEMS: THE IMPACT ON COCOA FARMERS' INCOME

Email correspondence : akhsandjalaluddin@gmail.com

Comment	Revision
Indonesia has provided about 1,951,270 hectares' area of cocoa plants (Fahmid et al., 2018). (What year ?)	In the period 2013-2017.
Cocoa is a perennial crop, why do the author did not include age of the tree? Why not include the variable of multiple cropping ?	The age of the cocoa trees of the respondents in this study were almost the same, because the farmers planted the trees at the same time. Therefore, the focus is on the role of agricultural extension in facilitating the needs of farmers..
Tribe or ethnic group? Better to use no of tribe or ethnic group	The correct use of the word is syllable. We have fixed it in the paper. The difference in ethnicity that is the research objective, whether information from other tribes affects farming behavior that has an impact on income.
If monoculture, what is the reason to include clove since your focus is on the cocoa?	Clove is a companion plant for cocoa. we made a comparison between farmers who only planted monocultures, namely cocoa and cloves. After that, we will see again how the farmers cultivate these two commodities simultaneously.
It does not make sense that multiple cropping produced higher production compared to monoculture. Please describe the monoculture and multiple cropping system in the field	Clove plants have many advantages for cocoa plants, some of the advantages as a shade plant and also the knowledge of farmers who cultivate polyculturally is better, in plant maintenance until harvest, so that the costs incurred are more efficient.

please explain your reason why in abstract R/C. Interpreted as demand compare to cost not revenue compare to cost.	Thank you, we have fixed it, in the abstract, the income should be greater than the costs incurred. Not demand.
please make the title of the article specifically describe the objective of the article and add content of the article show effect of implementation. If we talk about the effect of activities than we can't conclude the effect of activities based on firm or firm officer (as respondent). We better collect data and information from persons or community who using the capital form firm (PT Antam)	Implementation we mean in the title is how the company cooperates with business units in developing the business. The paper has explained the procedure for providing assistance from PT. Antam. After that the company provides funding and support in the form of hydroponic extension activities to increase sales value and assist marketing activities
