Gmail interface showing an email from Spandidos Publications. The email subject is "Spandidos Publications - Respond to peer-review comments - Esub 281068". The sender is br@osats.spandidos-publications.com. The email content includes a greeting to Dr. Nurlindah Hamrun, a reference to BR-13821-281068, and a title: "Profile of vitamin D receptor gene polymorphism TaqI in patients with periodontitis". The email provides instructions for submitting revised documents and lists several reviewer comments and a general comment. The reviewer comments include: 1. IRB approval date should be added. 2. The definition for healthy patients without periodontitis was missing. 3. For the determination of the sample size based on Lemeshow formula, (1) test value of difference between group, (2) anticipated rates, (3) level of significance, (4) power of the test should be shown. 4. Inclusion criteria for this study was "9 interproximal sites with probing pocket depth (PPD) ≥4 mm". Thus, only mild periodontitis patients have been included in this study. In this case, what's healthy group? Is it PPD=0? It's impossible. 5. Please explain why did you choose TaqI restriction enzyme? 6. In this discussion, authors stated that "Besides polymorphism, in this study, we detect a change in the sequence of nucleotides from amino acid valine to alanine in periodontitis patients which is likely to affect the level of VDR gene expression." It could be not gene expression, but protein function. However, it has not been studied here. The general comment states: "The authors presented an interesting and original work concerning to the profile of vitamin D receptor in patients with periodontitis. The manuscript is written in a comprehensive way." The title is deemed adequate, and the abstract is also adequate.

Invoice and Bank Transfer Details External Inbox X

languageediting@spandidos-publications.com
to me

Thu, Jan 20, 1:15 AM

Dear Dr Hamrun

Thank you for submitting your project.

Please find attached the invoice, which includes details for payment via bank transfer. Please confirm with your bank whether there are any additional charges for the transfer. Bank charges should not be deducted from the amount due. Please note that it can take up to three weeks for bank transfer payments to be processed. Please confirm with your bank regarding their policies on international payments.

IMPORTANT: When effecting payment, please ensure the project submission number (ESUB-10031) is clearly indicated in the details of the bank transfer, or on the bank draft/check. This is so that we can identify your payment.

When you have made the payment, please email us proof of your payment and click the 'Payment made' button on your online submission. We will let you know when the payment has been received into our bank account and we can then commence work on the manuscript. Please note that work can only commence when payment is received, not when the payment is made.

Kind regards,

Spandidos Publications - English Language Editing Service
